

G-Concerns Special: Tunisia on the Road to Democracy

Engaging with ISIE for Women Voters in Next Round of Presidential Election

Head of Mission, Sabra Bano, presented the GEM Preliminary Report to the President of the Independent Electoral Commission of Tunisia. "We look forward to further interaction with ISIE for progress of women voters in future elections", said Ms. Bano.

Read more>>

On the Ground for Women's Democratic Participation

Our Preliminary Report from the first round of Presidential elections in Tunisia contains observations from the largest international observation mission in the country. Teams visited polling stations to provide initial recommendations to increase women's democratic participation. Read more>>

GEM Mission Observes a Historic Election in Tunisia

110 national and international female observers deployed across the country to document Tunisia's first democratic parliamentary election. The election presented an opportunity for the country to enhance its institutional structure and promote inclusive governance. Read more>>

'Understanding need for gender parity remains a goal for Tunisia'

Director Sabra Bano spoke at a European Parliament event in Brussels in November. "My team and our partners will be actively engaged in following the campaign discourse and its impact on gender issues within Tunisia". Read more>>

Interested in joining the Gender Concerns International team? See our website for current vacancies. For more information: info@genderconcerns.org