

Shecarescovid19 Women's Testimonies around the Globe

Despite making up the majority of the frontline workforce in Italy, only a miniscule number of women are included in the decision-making process that will navigate the country's reopening.

Women's access to justice is weakened during lockdowns as the gender justice gap of the pre-Covid19 period is exacerbated, according to an UN-joint report, 'Justice for Women Amidst Covid-19'.

There are growing concerns that the global crisis triggered by the outbreak of Covid-19 will turn into a 'pink-collar recession' due to the disproportionate burden taken on by women around the world. It is clear that gender-inclusive responses to the pandemic are vital for guaranteeing women a prosperous future!

Girls and women living in slums are deeply affected by the spread of Covid-19 and the necessary measures taken to curtail its spread. Other than lack of water and sanitation facilities, and overcrowding, women in slums are often left without jobs, having to take on unpaid care work and face mounting levels of domestic violence.
